

THE TOUR OF THE LAKES.

The Eastern Excursionists at and around Duluth.

Duluth, Minn., Aug. 22.—The Philadelphia excursionists made an excursion to-day over the Lake Superior and Mississippi Railroad to Thomson, 23 miles, for the purpose of inspecting the celebrated slate mining veins at that point, and viewing the gorgeous scenery along the St. Louis river, particularly the Dalles or Rapids. These extend for miles along the river below Thomson and a short distance above. The bed of the river is of rocky formation, and forms an interminable series of shelves or steps, over which the dark-colored water passes and is churned into foam.

The day commenced very cloudy and threatening rain, but the excursionists, or about thirty of them, including seven ladies, were not dismayed, and though the rain fell copiously, they enjoyed the trip very much. Arriving at Thomson, they dined at a tasty little cottage, in which is located the office of Mr. Arnold, the Superintendent of the Lake Superior Slate Mining Company. The gentlemen inspected the veins of slate, which, though as yet confined to the surface, turn out a very superior description of roofing slate. Embarking again, the train passed over the bridge over the Dalles, and shortly after passed the junction of the road with the Northern Pacific. The train was taken some distance up the Northern Pacific track, until further progress was arrested by a long train of platform cars laden with rails for the present termination of the road. The iron for fifteen miles of track has now reached Duluth, and the progress of the road will be rapid. The train being the first containing passengers that had appeared on the Northern Pacific track, was greeted with cheers by the track-layers, who turned out of their houses despite the rain. The ladies in the party are rather proud of having been on the first passenger train on the Northern Pacific road, and it is fit that their names should be recorded. There were two Misses Felton, Miss Moorhead, Miss Clarke, Miss Badger, Miss Hopkinson, Miss Arnold, and Mrs. Fulton. The excursionists reached Duluth on their return about 6 o'clock. The rain has caused a change in the arrangements for the reception this evening of the excursionists from St. Paul, 360 in number, that started for this point.

The procession and illumination that had been projected were abandoned. The passengers on their arrival disembarked nearly opposite the Clarke House, the front of which was decorated with flags, and the visitors were greeted with the following motto:—"The King of Lakes to the Father of Waters, greeting." A fine band of music accompanied them. They were received with a salute, and the welcoming speech by the Mayor (Culver) of Duluth took place at the Clarke House. His remarks were very happy, and gave due credit to Jay Cooke and the other capitalists of Philadelphia who had aided in the construction of the road and building up Duluth.

Mayor Lech, of St. Paul, responded, and was followed by Hon. Ignatius Donnelly, who prophesied that Duluth would yet become an arm of the Atlantic by the construction of ship canals around the Falls of St. Mary and Niagara. His speech was received with great enthusiasm, and the excursionists were properly provided for at the Clarke House and on board the steamer Winslow.

INDEX.

AN EDITOR PLAYS BASE BALL.

The delightful and tender game of base ball having broken out with fresh violence this season, the following sketch is in order:—

The doctor said we needed exercise. Doctor knows. He told us to join base ball; we joined. Bought a book of instructions, and for five days studied it wisely if not too well. Then we bought a sugar-scoop cap, a red belt, a green shirt, yellow trousers, pumpkin-colored shoes, a penny collar, and a purple necktie, and, with a lot of other delegates, moved gently to the ground.

There were two nines. These nines were antagonists. The ball is a pretty little drop of softness, size of a goose-egg, and five degrees harder than a rock. The two nines play against each other. It is a quiet game, much like chess, only a little more chase than chess.

There was an umpire. His position was a hard one. He sits on a box, and yells "foul." His duty is severe. It is a murderous play-thing, descended from Pocahontas to the head of John Smith. The man in front of me was a pitcher. He was a nice pitcher, but he sent the balls hot. The man behind me was a catcher. He caught it, too!

Umpire said "play." It is the most radical play I know of, this base-ball. Saving cord-wind is moonlight rambles beside base-ball. So the pitcher sent a ball towards me. It looked pretty coming, so I let it come. Then he sent another. I bit it with the club, and have it gently upward. Then I started to walk to the first base. The ball hit in the pitcher's hands, and somebody said he caught fly. Alas, poor fly! I walked leisurely towards the base. Another man took the ball, and I tumbled to see how he was making it, and a mule kicked me on the cheek. The man said it was the ball. It felt like a mule, and I reposed on the grass. The ball went on!

Pretty soon there were two more flies, and three of us flew out. Then the other nine came in, and us nine went out. This was better. Just as I was standing on my dignity in the left field, a hot ball, as they call it, came skyrocketing towards me. My captain yelled, "take it!"

I hastened gently forward to where the ball was aiming to descend. I have a good eye to measure distances, and I saw at a glance where the little aroliote was to light. I put up my hands. How sweetly the ball descended! Everybody looked; I felt something warm in my eye. "Muffin!" yelled ninety fellows: "Muffin be d—d! It's a cannon ball!" For three days I've had two pounds of raw beef on that eye, and yet it paineth!

Then I wanted to go home, but my gentle captain said "stay." So I stayed and stayed. Pretty soon it was my strike. "To bat!" yelled the umpire. I went, but not all serene, as was my wont. The pitcher sent in one high. It struck me in the gullet. "Foul!" yelled the umpire. He sent in the ball again. This time I took it square and sent it down the right field, through a parlor window, a herosee lamp, and rip up against the head of an infant who was quietly taking its nap in his or its mother's arms. Then I slung the bat and maneuvered forth to the first base. I heard his words and looked. When I slung the bat, I had with it broken the jaw of the umpire and was fined ten cents.

The game went on. I liked it. It is so much fun to run from base to base just in time to be put out, or to chase a ball three-fourths of a mile down hill, while all the spectators yell "Muffin!" "go it!" "home run!" "go round again!" or "go round a dozen times!" Base ball is a sweet little game. When it came my turn to bat again I noticed everybody move back about ten rods. The new umpire retreated twelve rods. He was timid. The pitcher sent 'em in hot. Hot balls in time of war are good. But I don't like 'em too hot for fun. After a while I got a fair clip at it, and you bet it went into the daisies down the right field. A fat man and dog sat in the shade of an oak, enjoying the game. The ball broke one leg of the dog, and landed, like a runaway engine, in the corporosity of the fat man. He was taken home to die.

That was on a double-quick to the field, and tried to stop a hot ball. It came toward me from the bat at the rate of nine miles a minute. I put up my hands—the ball went sweetly singing on its way, with all the skin from my palms with it.

More raw beef. That was an eventful chap who first invented base ball. It's such fun. I've played five games, and this is the result:— Twenty-seven dollars paid out for things. One bunged eye—badly bunged. One broken little finger. One bump on the head. Nineteen lame backs. A sore jaw. One thumb dislocated. Three sprained ankles. Five swelled legs. One dislocated shoulder, from trying to throw the ball a thousand yards. Two hands raw from trying to stop hot balls. A lump the size of a hornet's nest on left hip, walk back.

A nose sweetly jammed, and five uniforms spoiled from rolling in the dirt at the bases. I like to play. I've looked over the scorer's book, and find that I've broken several lives, made one tally, broken one umpire's jaw, broken ten windows in adjoining houses, killed a baby, broke the leg of a dog, mortally injured the bread-basket of a spectator, knocked five other players out of time by slinging my bat, and knocked the water-fall from a school-marm who was standing twenty rods from the field, a quiet looker-on.

I've used up fifteen bottles of arnica liniment, five bottles of lotions, half a raw beef, and am so full of pain that it seems as if my limbs were but broken bats, and my legs the limbs of a dead horse-chessut.

ANESTHETIC ANECDOTES.

A Man Chloroformed and Robbed on the Street. How it was done. The Cincinnati Times of Thursday says:— A respectable looking gentleman called at our office this morning and told the following story:— My name, he said, is Mayor King, and I live in this city and did business here during the years 1854, '55, and '56. A few days since I returned to the city from a length absence in the West, having in my possession a large amount of money. Night before last, early in the evening, I was playing billiards at Phil. Tieman's saloon, when a boy handed me a note, signed by a name, requesting me to step out on the sidewalk, as he wanted to see me. I immediately went out, but instead of seeing the friend from whom the note purported to come, met three men, strangers to me, one of whom, however, stepped up, called me by name, grasped my hand, shaking it cordially. This person then introduced me to the other two men, and a conversation ensued, but upon what subject I do not now remember.

During this conversation I became unconscious. When I resumed consciousness I found myself standing on Sixth street, about a square and a half distant from Tieman's saloon. The first thing I remember noticing was a powerful odor of chloroform, which seemed to emanate from my breast. Placing my hand on my shirt front, I found it saturated with chloroform. I became unconscious.

The first thing I remember noticing was a powerful odor of chloroform, which seemed to emanate from my breast. Placing my hand on my shirt front, I found it saturated with chloroform. I became unconscious.

My next thought was of my pocket-book, and I placed my hands in my pants pockets only to find that they had both been thoroughly sifted. The pocket-book contained a sum of $200, and I was unable to remember the name of my hotel.

Why she did not look into the matter then does not appear; but about the time given above a man rushed up to meet her, and told her that her presence was needed at Dr. Ordway's at once. He hastened there, and found a crowd about the door of the house, and a woman in the street, who told him that there a sickening sight met his eyes. The doctor lay back in an easy chair all besmeared with blood and stupefied. The man Andrews was stretched out on the floor, the other spoke to the doctor and received no response. The man was also speechless.

Another sister requested a bystander to call the nearest doctor, and Dr. Woods was soon present. The man, in the meantime, had been able to tell in a hurried way his story. He had called, as above referred to, but knew not what took place from 7 till after 7 o'clock. By the side of the man was a large bottle of ether, and he thought he had taken some, and, down he had been under the influence all the time. Scattered on the floor were surgical instruments of all kinds, towels and cloths wringing wet with blood.

One of the doctor's hands was cut, and from the band of the man before him the blood was forming a pool on the floor. This hand, which looked more like a piece of fresh beef than anything else, had eight long cuts in it, and all deep to the bones. The back of the hand, perfectly sound before, was split open, and cuts of the thumb extended to the middle of the hand. Ordway was put to bed, and a policeman left to guard him. Andrews was taken home, and his wounds dressed. He will lose his thumb, if not the use of the hand. Ordway is recovering, but little interest, but wanted to refer it to a jury of doctors.

AN UNNATURAL MOTHER. The Child Murderer and Suicide in Iowa—Singular Statement of the Husband. A few days since the reader was shocked by a report by a woman in Davenport, Iowa, had drowned her two little children in a tub of water, and then jumped into a well, where she was found, also dead. It seems that the woman's husband, Mr. Keeg, a German, had informed one of his neighbors that he saw his wife drown herself. They had some pecuniary embarrassments, and were obliged to sell some of their goods. It was during his absence in town, after having disposed of some of his silverware, that Mrs. Keeg murdered the children. Upon being examined, Keeg told the following singular story:—

When I took the silverware and went up to Mr. Keeg's, I returned home about 5 o'clock; the children were up; we all slept in the front room; in the day time I put one of the children in the back room, and sometimes the children lay on it there; most of the silverware was given to me by my father; some was ours together; it was my wife's suggestion to sell the silverware; when I returned from the store in the evening I found the house dark; I lit a candle and saw our oldest child lying dead upon the floor of the bedroom; our little boy was lying with his head in the drinking-water bucket; I at once went into the yard and saw my wife at the well; I went to her; she told me what she had done; I asked her to come into the house; I laid the children on the bed and asked my wife how she could do so; we then rubbed them and tried to bring them to life; when they could not be brought alive, my wife said we had better follow the children, and drown ourselves in the well; I thought we should do so, for I could not think of going to the police court and telling my wife had drowned our children; we agreed to kill ourselves, and shook hands and walked to the well, climbed over the curb and together jumped in. (The well is 21 inches in diameter, 16 feet in depth, with 20 inches of water in it, walled up with rock. Surrounding the well is a curb 4 feet square, 2 feet high; across the centre is the window, upon which was the rope, bucket, and chain.) When we got down into the well my wife held her head under the water and died; I tried to put my head under, but could not get it down deep enough; the water choked me; I raised up and found my wife dead; I changed my mind, and concluded to shoot myself; I climbed up out of the well, and went into the house to shoot myself; when I saw my two little children lying there dead, I thought I could not do it; I had a single-barreled gun, but I was too weak to get it down from over the door and load it; I had powder, also, and caps in the house; I then thought I would go to my friend, Mr. Rolfs, and tell him what had happened; I did so, and asked him not to tell of this bad business until Sunday morning; I intended to kill myself before morning, and I did not think Mr. Rolfs could stop me; we went back to the house and got my wife out of the well, and soon after I was taken in custody and brought here to the coroner's jury returned a verdict in accordance with this statement, and Keeg was held to the charge of being accessory to his wife's death.

REAL ESTATE AT AUCTION. ASSIGNMENT SALE. FREEDOM IRON AND STEEL COMPANY. The undersigned, assignee in trust for the benefit of the creditors of the Freedom Iron and Steel Company, will sell by public auction, at the office of the company, in Derry township, Milford county, Pennsylvania, on TUESDAY, the 30th day of September, A. D. 1870, at 12 o'clock, noon, the following property of said company, comprising about thirty-nine thousand (39,000) acres of land in Milford and Huntingdon counties, Pennsylvania, on which there are erected extensive steel works, three (3) charcoal blast furnaces in use and one (1) disused, with numerous shops and buildings. The assignee proposes to sell at the same time and place:— The property known as the Yoder farm, in Brown township, Milford county, containing 153 acres and 154 perches. Also, the property known as the Williams farm, in Derry township, Milford county, containing 107 acres and 12 perches. A detailed description of all the above properties will be found in an advertisement in this paper of an interior date of the same property by Wistar Morris, James T. Young, and Enoch Lewis, trustees.

The foregoing properties will be sold in one parcel or lot, subject to the payment of the mortgages now existing against the property. One of them bearing date February 1, 1867, given to Wistar Morris, James T. Young, and Enoch Lewis, trustees, for principal $100,000, with interest thereon at 6 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, on the 1st days of June and December, on this date is due for principal $300,000, with interest from December 1, 1869. The other mortgage is dated December 1, 1868, held by Henry Winsor, Wistar Morris, and E. C. Biddle, in trust, to secure bonds of the company, payable on the 1st day of December, 1870, with interest thereon at 6 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, on the 1st days of June and December, on this date is due for principal $300,000, with interest from December 1, 1869. But the purchasers will be at liberty to insert a clause in their deed, excluding any personal liability of the said company, and agreeing to pay no more than a recognition that such mortgages exist and are liens.

Also, an assortment of dry goods, boots and shoes, groceries, provisions and sundries, suitable for a manufacturing establishment, in store at Forge Works, in Derry township, Milford county, and in store at Green's Manufacturing Company, in Huntingdon county. The whole of the above described personal property will be offered in one parcel, and if a sufficient price, in the judgment of the assignees, is not offered, the property will be withdrawn and sold in separate parcels, as may be decided upon. TERMS OF SALE. The purchaser of the real estate will be required to pay at the time of the sale One Thousand (1000) Dollars, if he should amount to so much, and any balance in 30 days, and they will be required to prepare and stand the deed to be signed by the assignees. The purchaser of the personal property will be required to pay at the time of signing the memorandum of sale, and to take down, $1000, and within thirty days the balance of the purchase money, reserving, however, what will be the probable amount of the dividend to which the purchaser, as creditors, will be entitled, less 10 per cent., and on their giving approved security, to pay in on reasonable notice, from time to time, any part or parts of such money, as may be required by the assignees in their judgment, and the purchaser will be required to pay, in addition to the amount of their bid, the debt due for wood, for the wood cut and bought by them, amounting to about $900.
